

Troop 200 February Camping Trip

Historian's Report

By: L. Wilson

We got to the campsite late Friday night. Everybody got settled in and went to bed before 10:00, because tomorrow was going to be a big day. When we arrived at the battleship, everybody was starving. Somebody decided to go fishing for breakfast. The fish caught was thrown back into the river in the chaos that occurred when Scoutmaster Tommy arrived with breakfast from Hardees.

We consumed the biscuits, hash browns, and orange juice in a shelter covered with writing, even on the table.

We then toured the battleship. It was quite small (see picture below), but the tour still took several hours. The ship had tons of different features.

We then toured the “serpentarium” in downtown Wilmington.

They had a lot more than snakes!

You never know what lies deep in the serpentarium!
